Ms. Tamara G. Sutherland

Director of Strategic Integration Assistant Secretary of the Army Installations, Energy and Environment (ASAIE&E)

Ms. Tamara Sutherland serves as the Director of Strategic Integration for the ASAIE&E. She leads a team of experts to develop and integrate installation strategic planning, programming, communication, and modernization programs in support of Army missions, services, and programs. She is the senior advisor to the Assistant Secretary of the Army and Installation leaders on strategic initiatives, communications, policy, programming, data analytics, technologies, and future requirements.

Prior to this assignment, Ms. Sutherland served as the Deputy Garrison Commander of ASA Fort Eustis, part of the Joint Base Langley- Eustis command. She has also served as the IMCOM Training, Deputy Chief, Plans and Ops, Chief of Data Analytics, and Integration and the IMCOM Central Region Installation Support expert for Fort Bliss, Fort Carson, Fort Hood, White Sands Missile Range, Fort Hunter Liggett and Reserve Forces Training Area Parks. She was dual hatted as the Chief of Plans Analysis and Integration and Transformation Office at USAG Ansbach, where she planned and led installation restructure and receipt of the Army's first rotational aviation brigade. She has stood up and led two transformation offices, responsible for integration and planning of installation and mission initiatives in support of region-wide efforts such as the European East Sites, Aviation Restructure Initiative, Camp Humphreys Transformation and Yongsan Relocation Program. Throughout her career she has provided installation governance, transformation, strategic planning and integrated support to Soldiers, Civilians, and their families at eight (8) installations across four (4) regions.

She served in the United States Army as an intelligence analyst primarily focused on Persian Area studies and crypto-linguistics. Various assignments as an analyst include overseas posts located in United Kingdom and Germany. She has three "Army-raised" children and is an active volunteer in the community, coaching and advocating for children and adults with special needs.
