

Announcement

June 21, 2022

We are tremendously proud that President Biden has announced his intent to nominate Actuate CEO Arati Prabhakar to lead the Office of Science and Technology Policy (OSTP) and, once confirmed to this position, also to serve as the Assistant to the President for Science and Technology. If the Senate confirms the nomination, Prabhakar will return to public service in this joint role at a crucial moment for American leadership to meet the challenges of our times. At present, Prabhakar continues as Actuate's CEO. If she does join the Biden Administration, she will be leaving Actuate well-positioned under the strong leadership of the rest of the Actuate team to effectively pursue its mission: the design and execution of R&D programs that create new solutions for societal challenges.
