The role of goat production in smallholder systems in Lao PDR: implications for improving productivity and scaling up production

Eoin Liehr , Joanne Millar, Stephen Walkden-Brown, Malavanh Chittavong and Luisa Olmo

Goats fulfil unique subsistence and socio-cultural roles in smallholder farmers' livelihoods in Laos. Increasing goat productivity can improve conditions of farmers' livelihoods, but it is unclear which approaches are most appropriate for resource-constrained farmers who balance multiple farming enterprises on small plots of land. Some approaches to increasing goat productivity are more applicable in Laos than are others. These approaches
