GUIDELINES FOR CONTRIBUTORS
(Revised: October 2020)

General

Romani Studies welcomes articles in all scholarly disciplines dealing with any aspect of the cultures of groups traditionally known as Roma/Gypsies as well as those of traveller or peripatetic groups. Reviews of books and audiovisual materials are also published. Fields covered include anthropology, art, folklore, history, linguistics, literature, political science, sociology, and their various branches.

Romani Studies is a peer-refereed scholarly publication. Article manuscripts are generally evaluated by the editor and two anonymous referees. Authors will be notified when a decision has been made to accept or reject a manuscript. Rejection may be outright, or with the possibility of revision and resubmission for a new evaluation. A manuscript submitted to the journal should not be under consideration by any other journal at the same time or have been published elsewhere.

Reviews and review articles are solicited by the editors. Persons who wish to review particular books should contact the Book Review Editor.

English is the publication language of the journal. Non-native speakers/writers are strongly advised to seek the support of a proof-reader with native-language competence before submitting their manuscript for publication. Subject to financial limitations and the availability of translators, the editor might consider articles submitted in languages other than English. Quotations in the texts of articles should be translated into English and the original text of the quotation should be supplied for editorial purposes. Linguistic data cited should be in the original language.

Electronic submission of articles in attachment (in Word or RTF format) is preferred for review, unless the text contains extensive picture material, in which case three hard copies of papers are required. Manuscripts generally should not exceed 40 double spaced pages. Manuscripts, including notes, quotations, and lists of references cited, should be double spaced on one side only of A4 or 8½ × 11-inch paper.

For style and format of manuscript submissions, see online guidelines for contributors: <https://online.liverpooluniversitypress.co.uk/loi/rost>
