The regions that have a lagoon usually have a road layout that facilitates the arrival to the lagoon, from any point that one starts the route. In analogy, the lagoon represents the universal reality and the region the human means of accessing knowledge. It happens that physics, Western philosophy, Eastern philosophy, Zen, Yoga, have led me to the same final knowledge. This knowledge can be expressed in an accessible way and exposes the fundamental right of everything that lives in the cosmos, including human beings. In 4 pages of accessible reading, an essential guide to life.

To live

PART 1 - Artificial lights blind us

Let me use an analogy. The wedding party of a married couple is prepared by both united families. An aunt will be in charge of receiving the gifts and arranging them so that people can see them. The aunt hides bad intentions and plans to steal the best gift the couple receives. You can't just take it to your car when the gift arrives, because everyone will notice. Nor can you put up a screen and hide it behind it for the duration of the party, as everyone would look behind the screen out of natural curiosity. Then he concocts his great treacherous and criminal idea. Ask the salon staff to set up a large bright spotlight to illuminate the gift table. And he asks that the lighthouse be placed in a specific way, because he wants to dazzle people when they approach the gift table, in such a way that they can see well what is near the edge of the table, but cannot distinguish what is on the table. located further back. This way you can place the best gift where the light does not allow it to be distinguished. When the party is over, no one will know that this gift has arrived and will quietly steal it. Perfect Crime.

There are aunts (and uncles) who organize the world's party with bad intentions, to deprive us all of the best gift that life has for us. They do it the same way, blinding and distracting us with artificial glare.

That's obvious !, many people will say in unison. There is nothing new in those words! True, they do not contain it. If those who read this will give me a little more attention, in the rest of the document I will mention something that a handful of highly perverse people prevent us from seeing. That something is nothing less than our natural right, the only true, real and effective right, sufficient to provide us with life, real life, not the pseudo-life that the aunts and uncles of the world party throw at us with limitless wickedness and perversion.

PART 2 - Without truth it is impossible to exercise our right

Again the obvious, now in the title of this section! , perhaps it is the protest of many people. That obvious title is implicitly asserting that our natural law is tied to a truth that instead of being taught from childhood, is almost always ignored in the course of life. The lack of learning does not happen because of the laziness of families to educate boys and girls. It happens because that handful of highly perverse people organize everything to dazzle and blind our consciences.

Let's express the truth that has been silenced.

It is impossible for something to exist and lack consciousness. Something is conscious when it receives information and uses it to model its actions.

Let us mention the foundations of this general law.

- The production of waves is absolutely inevitable every time something happens, anywhere in the universe and at any instant.
Event \dot{y} waves emitted inevitably.
The relationship is direct.
- The waves contain information about the event. This too is unavoidable. And they contain energy, which promotes actions in the object that receives the energy.
No object can remain rigidly unchanged when it receives energy. The information carried by the waves is incorporated into the objects that receive them. And those objects change, they are modified, in a way according to the information received, because the energy of the waves drives the changes. The subsequent actions of the object are not blind, they are modeled by the information received.
- This type of universal functioning is the basis of the consciousness, property and faculty present in all objects, without exception, from the most elementary type of objects to the most complex type of objects. We belong to a class of objects endowed with a degree of complexity notably greater than the degree of elementary objects. Every time someone tries to classify a living being as an object, we feel great rejection because we learned to believe that an object lacks everything, except for the grams or kilograms it weighs. We believe that mass is its only property. This idea has no basis in reality and is completely absurd, because every event emits waves.
- What is expressed means that nothing in the universe lacks consciousness, nor lacks life. Surely an atom does not invite friends and relatives to a Christmas gathering, but that does not take away the consciousness or the life that waves inevitably foster.

PART 3 - The only full, universal and eternal right

From the most elementary to the most complex, everything has life and consciousness. So naturally, the entire cosmos has them. With its vastly greater complexity, the cosmos is alive and conscious like us. He has powers and needs that we do not encompass, without lacking the same basic powers and needs that we have. The simple is included in the complex. Simple strokes are not absent in the work of a master painter.

At this point in the writing I need to mention the greater risk for those who hear or read something.

It is the attitude of thinking ah, of course, logical, evident. Nothing will be clear, nor will it be illogical, nor will it be evident, as long as essential reflection is lacking, which is simple but essential.

What is that reflection?

Everything mentioned in the previous paragraphs means that the cosmos, with its consciousness, has a direct possibility of dialoguing with us. And an additional detail. Even if we dedicated every second of our lives to dialogue with the cosmos, we would never come to bother it, interrupt it, abuse its attention, distract it, etc. , because the cosmos is not subject to the limitations that we face in dialogue with an infinite number of beings at the same time, without overloading or compromising its faculties.

We can live connected to the cosmic consciousness in all the moments of our existence. We can and it is the healthiest, the advisable, the really natural, because of the way the cosmos exists and works.

PART 3 - What is the use of living in continuous dialogue with the cosmos?

We know that the cosmic consciousness has a direct possibility of dialoguing with us and that it is impossible to bother it. But there is a basic detail. Do we have any message that we are interested in sending to that consciousness? What could be the content of the dialog?

The truth is that we do not need to prepare the content in advance. Compared to the cosmos, we are in the same relationship that a small child has with his mother. And what is natural is to dialogue with the cosmic consciousness as a child dialogues with his mother. The child has concerns, urgencies, fears, sometimes experiences loneliness, abandonment, decline in self-esteem, feels the need for protection and support. Without thinking twice, when something like this happens to her, she immediately communicates it to her mother, simply and directly, without a prepared speech. He just hugs his mother and says it.

This is the instance that inspires in my heart the need to give an affective nickname to the omnipresent reality of cosmic consciousness. With a nickname I feel that I can hug that infinite mother, that I can receive warmth from her and I can hear her velvety voice, while a placid and lucid calm settles in me. The nickname I accept most frequently is Santa Cec'e. Santa, we have all used it many times, in varied contexts. And Cec'e why? For short. By abbreviating her name I feel like I can hug her better. If I say twice the name of the letter C, it remains Cec'e. And two letters C are the initials of Cosmic Consciousness. This is how the nickname of Santa Cec'e is formed, who has, as one of her virtues, being our Cosmic Mother. Sometimes I also like to say Cosmic Mother.

Regardless of the nickname or the name that we prefer, the essential thing is to live in continuous dialogue with the Cosmos, because it is someone omnipresent, alive and conscious.

A living and conscious being wants to prevent something from threatening its existence. Every object, down to the most elementary particle, is a component of the existence of the cosmos. That is why the cosmic consciousness, Santa Cec'e, provides in a timely manner what each part needs to be well. It is our right, and if we think fairly, we will understand that it is also our duty, to inform Santa Cec'e of our legitimate needs in order to contribute to its task of providing in a timely manner. With the Cosmic Mother we can dialogue an immense variety of issues and, in that variety, include our duty to request what we legitimately need.

Why this insistence on legitimacy? Because a legitimate request contains just enough for our well-being. Our includes the family group, the group social etc. This simplicity makes it possible for you to lack nothing and for your neighbor neither. If you ask for more than is simply necessary, someone around you will suffer a lack. The so-called rich individuals ask for and hoard more than is simply necessary.

If you do not exercise your right to communicate with the Cosmic Mother, they have exclusivity and manage to monopolize almost all of what should be equally distributed. No event is possible in matter without the pre-existing essential information to guide what will happen. Matter does not itself contain that kind of information. It is provided by sentient beings. The more connected a being is with Santa Cec'e, the more opportunity he has to direct material processes. We need to acquire certain, firm and indubitable knowledge of that. It's the only way to prevent a bunch of malicious people from taking over everything.

We know that one of the consequences of the council of Nicaea was to adulterate the bible used up to that moment. Literally the ancestral book was mutilated, adulterated and transformed into an unrecognizable caricature, which betrays the previous content. And we know that the most ferocious destruction does not manage to eliminate all the parts of the content. That very famous and oft-repeated phrase ask and you shall receive, uttered in the context of the needs that each person experiences in their lives, has probably been spared. That phrase is a natural truth disclosed at that time. Obviously, disclosed without explaining how and why there is a protective and providing cosmic consciousness.

If all people were informed of the truth regarding the Cosmic Consciousness and the direct possibility of dialoguing with it, the handful of perversely malicious people would never manage to monopolize all the resources and subject the rest to a regimented of slavery and deprivation.

Whoever has understood that truth and remembers the reasons that validate it, has the opportunity to teach. In the event that this opportunity is not materialized, you will have a debt that no amount of material resources can settle, because it is a cosmic debt.
