4	Some stores do not have any human staff. By not hiring workers, they can save a lot of money over time. Also, self-service machines or other forms of technology do not make mistakes and can work faster. However, such technology can be expensive, and there is a higher risk that some people steal items.
5	I think it is a good idea. First, repairing clothes is environmentally friendly. By repairing clothes and using them for a long time, people can reduce waste, which helps to protect the environment. Second, people can save money. Generally speaking, repairing clothes is cheaper than buying new ones, and people can spend their money on other things, such as their hobbies. For these reasons, I think it is a good idea for people to repair their clothes instead of buying new ones.
