Message from the Guest Editor

Dear Colleagues,

Lung cancer is a challenging disease worldwide. Currently, recent advances regarding biomarkers and systemic therapies have been developed to alter this disease's prognosis. Broad NGS panels are now a reality in clinical practice; they help a lot of clinicians in making the best decisions to ultimately improve patient care. In this Special Issue, we hope to examine papers regarding innovation and novel technologies for lung cancer diagnosis and treatment. We welcome original articles, meta-analyses, systematic reviews, narrative reviews, clinical cases, and clinical trials regarding lung cancer issues.
